United States Victims of State-Sponsored Terrorism Fund Claims

Following the Iranian Revolution in 1979, Iran's government has engaged a pattern of conduct to sponsor acts of both domestic and international terrorism. With the Iranian Revolutionary Guard, the country has provided training to terrorists who have subsequently carried out attacks around the world.

The rogue nation has supplied fuel, missiles, equipment, and training to various terrorist groups and has harbored fugitive members of terror groups, including members of Al Qaeda. Iran has provided financing to terrorists for three major wars in which the U.S. has been involved, including the wars in Iraq, Afghanistan, and Syria. It has also financed terrorist groups in Yemen and elsewhere throughout the Middle East.

Many U.S. service members have suffered serious injuries or have been killed as a result of Iran's state-sponsored terrorism in Iraq, Afghanistan, and Syria. Iraq War veterans and veterans of these other wars who have been injured by an explosive formed penetrator or an improvised explosive device may be eligible to recover compensation from the United States Victims of State-Sponsored Terrorism Fund. Physicians dispense not only medicines but words that influence medicines or, all by themselves, that affect the patient more than the medicine.

US VICTIMS OF STATE SPONSORED TERRORISM FUND

What is the United States Victims of State-Sponsored Terrorism Fund?

The Justice for United States Victims of State-Sponsored Terrorism Act was passed in 2016 as a part of the Consolidated Appropriations Act.[1] The law established a fund for U.S. servicemembers, their families, and people who were abducted and held during the Iranian hostage crisis to allow for the recovery of compensation for their losses caused by injuries from an improvised explosive device or an explosive formed penetrator device in wars that were partially funded through state-sponsored terrorism.

The law is codified in 34 U.S. Code § 20144. [2] It allows Iraq War veterans and other veterans who have filed lawsuits against Iran or other state sponsors of terrorism and have won judgments in a U.S. District Court to apply for compensation from the fund. Individual claimants may be eligible to recover up to $20 million from the fund. If the family members also have eligible claims, they are limited to an aggregate of $35 million in compensation, depending on the value of the judgments that they are awarded in their court cases.

Injuries from incidents of international terrorism

Thousands of U.S. soldiers have suffered injuries as a result of an IED or an EFP. Some of the injuries that may entitle veterans to compensation include the following types:

- ◆ Shrapnel injury
- ◆ Traumatic brain injury or TBI
- ◆ Amputation
- ◆ PTSD

These types of severe injuries may cause the victims to suffer from a permanently reduced quality of life. A traumatic brain injury or TBI may require a veteran to have round-the-clock care for the rest of his or her life. A shrapnel injury or an amputation may cause permanent disfigurement and disability, and PTSD may prevent soldiers from obtaining and finding employment while harming their relationships with others around them.

HIGH COST OF HEALTHCARE

Health care in the United States is expensive—so expensive that Americans borrowed approximately $88 billion in 2018 to pay their medical bills, The New York Times reports, based on a survey by Gallup and the non-profit West Health. About one in four Americans have gone without medical treatments because of the cost, the survey also found, and 50% worry about going bankrupt because of a medical emergency.

Cost concerns aren't limited to those of modest means. One-third of respondents in households earning $180,000 or more a year said they worry about going bankrupt in a medical crisis. Overall, 12% of respondents reported borrowing money for health care, including 11% who already have health insurance and face high deductibles and out-of-pocket costs.

PREVENT DISABILITY WITH ONE HOUR OF EXERCISE

More evidence, in case you wanted it, that exercise is good for you: The CNN website reports that a study on knee osteoarthritis, which causes aching, pain, and/or stiffness in the lower extremities, has found that just one hour of moderate to vigorous exercise a week can reduce the chance of disability.

The study looked at patients 49–83 who were considered disability-free despite some lower joint problems. The patients' physical activity was monitored with accelerometers. Over four years, researchers found, participants who got at least 56 minutes of moderate to vigorous exercise a week were 86% less likely to grow mobility-impaired than others who got less exercise.

The findings are important for people with early osteoarthritis, who can experience occasional pain, stiffness, or weakness in the joint as the cartilage that covers bones wears down with age.
